Trustee Geise called the meeting to order at 4:30 p.m.

Trustees Cass and Russell requested the privilege of the floor to express their appreciation to Cheryl Ten Eyck for her outstanding service and support. They also noted Cheryl's consistent responsiveness and contributions to the success of the College as a whole. Debora Corsner also expressed her appreciation of Cheryl's efforts in supporting operations and resolving issues at the Newark location.

Debora Corsner, Newark Campus Center Director provided a presentation on Newark Campus Center activities, enrollment, and community engagement. Credit enrollment trends indicate that, while fall headcount was down 7.7% compared to the prior year (adjusted for projections related to the P-TECH program), the Center exceeded its targeted headcount and achieved growth in full-time equivalent (FTE) enrollment. Spring FTE increased by 31.5, reflecting expanded course offerings despite the smaller overall size of the location.

Non-credit programming continues to expand, including the fifth cohort of virtual welding and additional workforce development offerings. The welding program has received regional attention, including local media coverage and increased participation in job fairs and graduation ceremonies. Workforce training initiatives continue to grow, with increased instructor engagement and the development of a certified testing lab projected to serve approximately 500 individuals. This initiative is expected to strengthen visibility and attract prospective students to the College.

Additional highlights included growing participation of women in welding programs, successful open house events with approximately 50 attendees, and engagement from state and local leaders, including representatives from SUNY, BOCES, and regional legislators. Collaborative partnerships, including P-TECH and workforce referral pipelines, continue to develop. The Newark Campus Center and P-TECH program were also featured at a national conference, further elevating the College's profile.

Recruitment and outreach efforts remain a priority, with targeted high school visits, direct admissions engagement, and community presentations. Workforce and admissions staff have partnered on outreach initiatives, including presentations at the Newark Chamber of Commerce. Expanded GED testing, SUNY Reconnect programming, and a robust schedule of workforce development offerings were also noted.

Planning is underway for the potential development of an early college high school model at the Newark Campus Center. Upcoming events include a STEAM Camp (July 13–17) for students in grades 6–9, as well as Accepted Student Day, Spring Visit Day, registration events, graduation, and the Laker Day of Giving.

Dr. Nye commented that the Newark Campus Center as "small but mighty," recognizing its significant impact on both the College and the surrounding community.

Approval of Minutes

The minutes of the March 4, 2026, Committee Meeting were presented for review. Trustee Mihalik inquired if any revisions were needed; none were noted.

Enrollment Report

Dr. Carol Urbaitis reviewed the enrollment report included in the meeting packet, reflecting data as of March 20, 2026, with a verbal update provided through March 27, 2026. Spring enrollment, excluding Gemini, is up approximately 6%, with FTE up 4.8%. Overall enrollment growth remains strong, and significant changes are not anticipated for the remainder of the term. Fall enrollment projections will be available in May.

Discussion followed regarding the continued growth in part-time enrollment, consistent with national trends. Trustees noted the financial implications of this shift and the need for improved modeling to better understand FTE-related costs. Administration will work to develop tools and projections to support future planning discussions, with additional information to be presented at upcoming meetings.

Gemini enrollment has increased by approximately 350 students. This growth is attributed in part to expanded participation by partner school districts, including Canandaigua and Victor, and increased awareness of the program's value. Some districts have elected to cover Gemini fees, eliminating costs for students and further supporting access. Continued collaboration with BOCES through cooperative service agreements was also noted.

Supporting Students: The World is Our Classroom – Sicily and South Africa

John Bateman, Associate Professor, and Beth Johnson, Interim Associate Provost for Curriculum & Instruction presented an overview of faculty-led study abroad opportunities in Sicily and South Africa. The programs are designed to expand global learning and provide students with immersive, credit-bearing experiences aligned with their academic programs.

The Sicily program, developed in partnership with an international institution, will offer coursework in areas such as theatre, language, and design, with opportunities for students to engage directly with historical and cultural sites. Courses are eligible for financial aid, and the program is expected to grow in future terms.

The South Africa program continues to demonstrate strong enrollment, with 11 students participating this year. The experience focuses on ecological and environmental studies, including hands-on wildlife tracking and field-based learning. Students work alongside trained guides and gain practical skills in conservation and environmental science.

Both programs emphasize student support, safety, and accessibility, including coordinated travel, housing, and pre-departure preparation. Additional opportunities for post-program engagement and continued global learning were also discussed. Trustees expressed strong support for these initiatives, noting their value in enhancing student experience and positioning the College as a destination for high-impact learning opportunities.

Originally adopted in June 2017, the Credit Contact Hour Policy has been updated to reflect the evolving modalities of instruction. As teaching and learning have shifted, particularly with the growth of asynchronous and hybrid formats. Traditional seat-time measures have become less effective in capturing student engagement.

The College defines one credit hour as equivalent to 37.5 hours of total student engagement over the duration of a course. This standard applies consistently across instructional modalities, including lecture, laboratory, and alternative delivery formats.

- For lecture-based courses, this traditionally equates to approximately 3.0 hours of direct instruction per week across the term.
- For laboratory and experiential courses, as well as online or asynchronous formats, student engagement may occur outside of a traditional classroom setting.

In all cases, credit hour determination is based on a combination of direct instruction and substantive interaction, along with assigned coursework completed outside of scheduled instructional time. This ensures that all modalities whether synchronous, asynchronous, in-person, or remote are held to an equivalent standard of total student learning time.

This revised definition affirms that 37.5 hours represents the total expected student effort per credit, inclusive of all instructional and independent learning activities, aligned with institutional and accreditation expectations in 2026.

Milt Johnson, Professor reviewed the following resolution: APPROVE REVISION OF THE CREDIT/CONTACT HOUR POLICY WHEREAS, Finger Lakes Community College strives to ensure that all credit-bearing courses and programs comply with applicable state and federal regulations governing the award of academic credit; and, WHEREAS, the Credit/Contact Hour Policy establishes the standards by which the College awards semester credit hours across all instructional types and modalities; and, WHEREAS the revised policy provides more detailed and equitable credit hour standards across all instructional types (lecture, laboratory, clinical, experiential learning, etc.) and modalities; and, WHEREAS, the revised policy aligns the College's credit hour definitions with federal regulations (34 CFR § 600.2) and SUNY policy, and introduces clarifying definitions and procedures to support consistent application across departments and programs; and, WHEREAS, the Academic Senate of Finger Lakes Community College voted to approve the revised Credit/Contact Hour Policy on March 5, 2026; NOW, THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the Finger Lakes Community College Board of Trustees does hereby approve the revised Credit/Contact Hour Policy.

Barbara Schreiber who also is another colleague who had an impact for 30 years, provided sources of knowledge that every student left FLCC with more than a degree. She listened and advocated for students as an advisor. Her impact with the emergency loan fund through the Foundation related to student hardships to dismantle the barriers that often derail our students. Recognizing that students often face barriers that extend beyond academics, she worked with colleagues to advance the FLCC Cares Program and helped pioneer the emergency loan program through the FLCC Foundation. These initiatives provided critical support to students facing food insecurity, financial hardship, housing instability, and other challenges that threaten academic success. He spearheaded the Social Science department's alignment with the SUNY General Education Framework, successfully earning a DEI designation for his anthropology courses at a time when few FLCC offerings had done so. He led the development of a SUNY Seamless Transfer pathway for anthropology, represented the department in statewide discussions, and his early mastery of successive learning management systems made him a trusted resource for colleagues navigating institutional transitions; NOW, THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the FLCC Board of Trustees hereby bestow the distinction of Emeritus status upon Hemen Sweet with all the rights and privileges thereof.

Throughout her tenure at FLCC, Ms. Ticonchuk exemplified professional excellence, innovation, and a deep commitment to student success across every role she held. As one colleague put it, “I cannot possibly convey all of the reasons that Berna is deserving of Emeritus status. She embodies the values of FLCC, and everyone who worked with her valued her as a colleague and human being.” WHEREAS Berna Ticonchuk's effectiveness across her many roles is a true mark of distinction. She served simultaneously as technical specialist, greenhouse manager, academic advisor, horticulture program coordinator, and instructor, and she excelled in each capacity. As manager of the department's greenhouse, she transformed it into a living laboratory that enriched teaching and applied learning, often coming in on weekends to tend to it whenever necessary and keeping operations running even as the physical space deteriorated around her. Colleagues noted that she never shied away from difficult jobs, meeting every challenge with a matter of fact, get-it-done attitude. She also helped greenify special events across campus, contributed to the beautification of the arboretum and flowerbeds before graduation, and served as a steady, stabilizing force through the many transitions the department experienced over the years; WHEREAS Berna Ticonchuk's student-centered approach was at the heart of everything she did. She also represented the program at high school recruiting events, helping to build the pipeline of future horticulture students at FLCC; WHEREAS Berna Ticonchuk maintained the highest standards of professional growth throughout her career, keeping her DEC, CNLP, and ISA certifications current through ongoing training and professional development. Her commitment to staying at the forefront of her field was recognized in 2020 when she received the SUNY Chancellor's Award for Excellence in Service, one of the most prestigious honors in the SUNY system WHEREAS Ms. Ticonchuk's community service was wide-ranging and deeply rooted in environmental stewardship and public education. She served as a mayoral-appointed member of the City of Canandaigua Tree Advisory Board, participated in the Western New York ReLeaf Council, and served on the Sonnenberg Gardens Education Committee. She delivered educational programming connected to the NYS Agricultural Experiment Station and organized a public lecture series, including a notably well-attended event featuring renowned ecologist Doug Tallamy at Stage 14. Since her retirement, she has continued this work, leading a tree inventory initiative in the Village of Naples and offering public pruning workshops through the Naples Library, a testament to a commitment to community that never required a job title to sustain it; NOW, THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the FLCC Board of Trustees hereby bestow the distinction of Emeritus status upon Berna Ticonchuk with all the rights and privileges thereof.

Strategic Thought Presentation – Banner SaaS – Dr. Nye and Dr. Ortloff

Dr. Nye introduced Todd Myles, who participated virtually, and noted that his remarks would support an upcoming resolution on transitioning to Banner SaaS. The current student information system was discussed as outdated and no longer sustainable for efficient operations, particularly in reporting, forecasting, and daily administrative functions. Staff across IT, APCI, the Registrar's Office, and Human Resources have relied on temporary workarounds, underscoring the need for a modernized system. The proposed transition to Banner SaaS represents a significant institutional investment, with implementation anticipated from June 2026 through February 2028 and partial funding from institutional reserves.

Todd Myles outlined the scope of the project, emphasizing the need for temporary staffing support and collaboration with SUNY and peer institutions in a cohort model. Trustees discussed costs, long-term benefits, and the importance of improved data standardization and operational efficiency. It was noted that the transition will primarily affect back-end systems, with minimal disruption to students and anticipated long-term improvements in scheduling, communication, and mobile access. Regular updates to the Board will be provided as the project progresses.

FLCC 2025-2065 Operating Budget Update & Finance Report

Karen Ohlrich discussed the report in the packet. As of February 28th revenue tracking is on point with what we expected other than tuition, FTEs have gone up, we weren't sure how to anticipate that. Miscellaneous fees are up due to health fees.

Expenses are tracking and we are only 50 % done with the academic year. There are some savings with salary vacancies, and all other expenses are where they should be.

Resolutions

Dr. Ortloff provided an update on strategic initiatives, noting that projects are progressing well and will either extend through the end of the current strategic plan or be incorporated into the operational budget as they are completed. She highlighted continued collaboration with Jeremy on a strong online program, now approximately 75% online, incorporating innovative software, exercise equipment integration, and data-driven student assessments. Additional program enhancements include expanded work with animal science models, with recent approvals supporting further development, including swine-related instruction. Debora also noted growing industry interest and the potential role of AI in advancing these efforts.

Further updates included the use of augmented and virtual reality technologies, such as AVR headsets and immersive modeling tools, to enhance instruction in areas like butchery and welding, providing high-impact, hands-on learning experiences. AlexAI has expanded to additional student groups, supported by advisory board engagement, and continues to strengthen pathways from internships through program completion. The Mosaic initiative, in collaboration with Liz Brownell, connects students with local leaders and businesses. Steve highlighted ongoing partnerships in Canandaigua and Geneva, including ArtSpace window displays coordinated with downtown businesses and Jackie, as well as expanded dual enrollment opportunities with regional high schools. Banner SaaS Costs and Conversion

Discussion continued regarding costs associated with the Banner SaaS transition. It was noted that under the current system, SUNY is responsible for certain platform-related components; however, the SaaS model introduces additional fees, including platform subscription costs and implementation-related expenses.

Trustee Astles clarified that referenced fees do not include conversion costs, which reflect the work required to migrate the College's existing system into the Banner SaaS environment. Dr. Ortloff discussed that the conversion is complex, as it involves translating data and processes from the current system into a different programming structure and language used by the SaaS platform. As a result, additional technical work, staffing, and resources are necessary to ensure a successful transition. APPROVAL TO ADVANCE BANNER SAAS IMPLEMENTATION WHEREAS, SUNY has identified a need to transition community colleges and universities to a multi-tenant, cloud-native SaaS version of Ellucian Banner. The initial cohort includes 5-6 strategically selected campuses relying on disparate student information systems (SIS); and WHEREAS, this approach enables SUNY to address critical modernization gaps and establish a shared foundation prior to migrating the 21 community colleges that currently utilize on-premise Banner; and WHEREAS, a key distinction between the SaaS and on-premise deployment lies in how software functionality is packaged and priced. Under the SaaS model, campuses gain access to comprehensive bundles of additional software tools that are included in the overall SaaS subscription fee; and

WHEREAS, SUNY would be responsible for the following fees:

- Estimated $1.8 - $2.2 million implementation cost

WHEREAS, FLCC would be responsible for the following fees:

- SaaS Licensing and Platform Fees: $302,204 (annually with a 5% escalation rate)
- SICAS Membership: $38,654

The conversation was noted as productive, with recognition that while there is strong potential within the current staff, there remains opportunity for continued growth and improvement.
